Intern, The Veale Foundation

Are you interested in philanthropy and entrepreneurship? Do you enjoy the challenge of organizing events and information? Do you naturally turn to the web and social media to share the latest, most interesting news?

The Veale Foundation, based in Pepper Pike, Ohio, is a nonprofit, grantmaking organization whose signature program is the Veale Youth Entrepreneurship Forum. The Forum is a growing network of high schools in Northeast Ohio that equips students with an entrepreneurial mindset and essential skills.

The Veale Foundation is seeking a talented intern who loves the nonprofit sector and who wants to help us amplify the Foundation's message and organize its work. Our ideal intern is someone who is familiar with Wordpress, Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram and who wants to work on creating and curating content for the web. We are looking for someone who loves entrepreneurship and who wants to learn about nonprofit program development, grants management, event planning, relationship building, and partnerships. Our intern will be equally comfortable creating web content as organizing grantee information and doing online research.

What You Will Learn:

The Veale Foundation is committed to providing our intern with a valuable learning experience. You will become experienced in online communications and grants management. You will gain exposure to program development, how to work through networks and partnerships to achieve program goals, and interact with community leaders.

Details:

The intern is expected to work 15-20 hours per week for at least 15 consecutive weeks. This is a paid internship. To apply, please submit a resume to cbailie@vealefound.org.
