Fall 2022

UST 393 Social Justice and the City

T & Th 4-5:45 pm

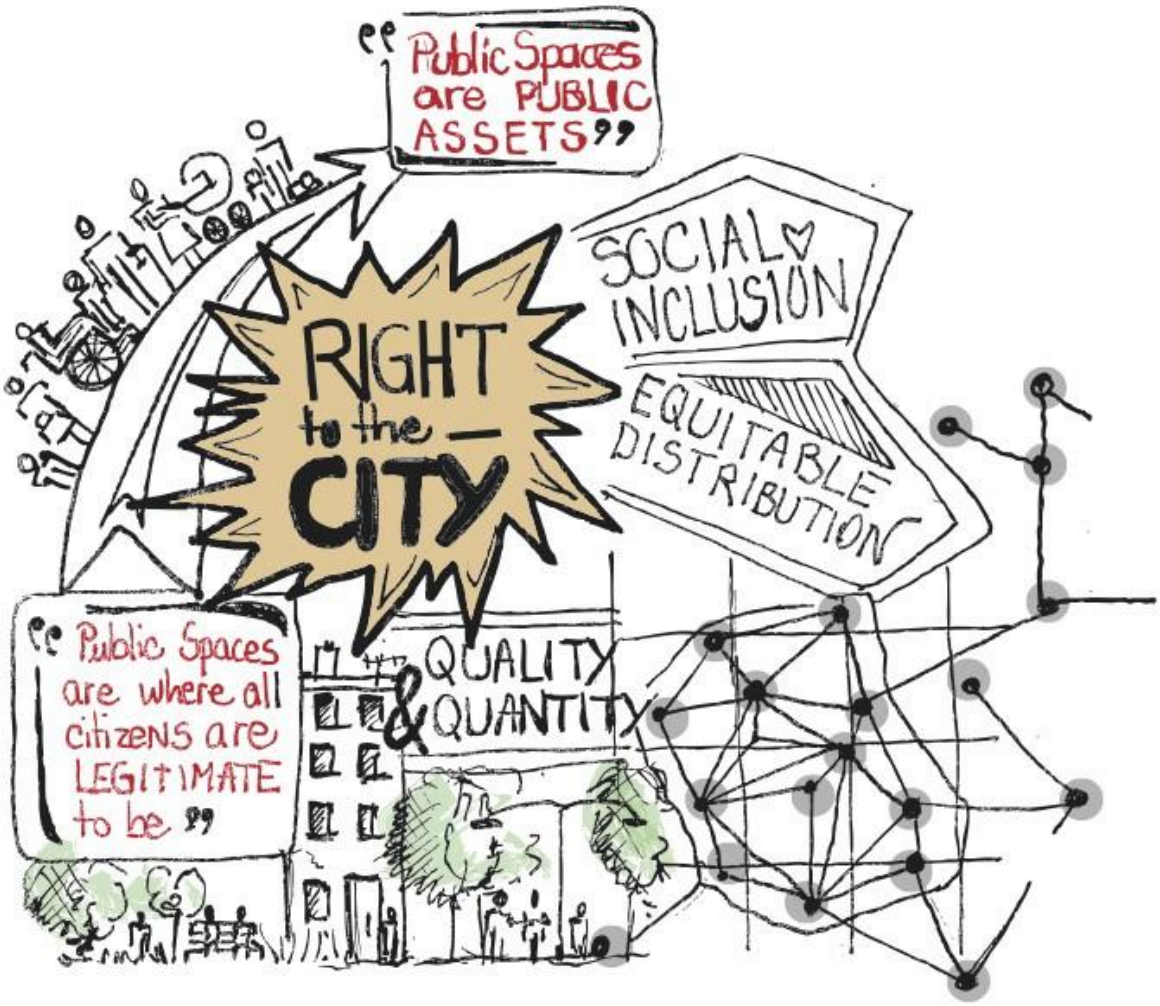

Image Credit: Learning UCLG

The Urban Studies program is pleased to offer its first Social Justice and the City course! This participatory seminar examines social inequities of urbanized areas (spatial justice) in the United States as they relate to historical and contemporary structural developments in land use, housing, economic development, environment, transportation, schools, and public services. The seminar includes engaging discussions and guest speakers working towards equitable outcomes in urban areas. Course materials are free through the course Blackboard.